

Kancho Kojuharov

THE LEVELS OF COMMUNICATION IN THE TEXTUAL HISTORICAL SOURCES

(Summary)

According to the author: “In order to find a grain of truth from the poor and often controversial textual records, the researcher has to feel the spirit of the particular epoch, has to adjust their thinking to the mentality of the contemporaries and they have to compile their conclusions in a well-built and certain construction, using everything known about the epoch, event or personality. The weak link in the cycle of this historical versification usually is the perfunctory analysis of the texts”. The recent research examines the levels of communication in the historical texts and the mental constructs about History and the role of the History in the process of communication.