STEPHANOS DRAGUMIS AS AN IDEOLOGIST AND INSPIRED OF GREEK ARMED PROPAGANDA IN MACEDONIA (THE END OF XIX - BEGINNING OF XX CENTURY)

(Summary)

This article aims to present the views of Stephanos Dragumis on the Macedonian question and the doctrine that the Greek armed propaganda in the region follows. Stephanos Dragumis (1842-1923) is chosen as a main subject of the study, because he was one of the most long-lasting participants in the Greek political life (since 1879, when he was first elected as Member of Parliament, to his death in 1923) and because he was one of the inspirers and leaders of the Greek struggle in Macedonia. Although his son Yon Dragumis was the most famous representative of that family, the person and the views of Stephanos Dragumis were more suitable for the purposes of this study, because it was he who founded the interest of the family in the Macedonian question. In the course of the presentation the conceptions of Stephanos Dragumis and Yon Dragumis are compared and in that way the similarities and differences between them are accentuated.
